President's Message

Dear all,

The "unlocking" phase of our lives has recently taken place after the whole world was at a standstill for almost two years; it was not easy for us to come back from where we left.

Despite posing several challenges, our faculty, teachers and students were able to bridge the gap between the past and present. Every teacher and student ensured to actively participate in this process of exchange of knowledge and tread towards overall development from their end. The physical touch that the students had been missing was covered by giving them practical knowledge by using online tools. We decided to come on common ground and conducted lectures in hybrid mode that involved both online and in-class interaction based on the students' convenience and choice. We also ensured that all fair means of evaluating our students were in place and thus conducted offline examinations.

Since the covid-19 virus hasn't been completely eradicated yet, we commanded everyone to take all the necessary precautions, including in-class distancing and wearing masks at all times. At Mithibai College (Autonomous) we believe in a holistic approach towards the growth of our students; thus, we take all student-friendly measures for their development. I therefore encourage students to be goal-focused, dedicated, and optimistic while striving to irk their inner spirit and capabilities.

I wish everyone the best for their future.

Shri Amrish Patel
Hon. President and Trustee, SVKM

From the Principal's Desk

"Where there is hope...there is life."

– Anne Frank

The pandemic and the lockdown presented challenges to the world of education too; adapting to the online modes of learning and assessment was indeed difficult, for both the teachers and the learners. Our college braved the challenges with strong determination, resilience, hope and creativity in our mission to pursue teaching, learning and evaluation effectively. After an extended period of adversity, the academic year 2021-22 served to be a benchmark of both adaptation and transformation.

In the first half of the academic year, we continued our adaptation to the online modes of interaction, learning, assessment and celebration of events and activities. We learned the art of technology like we never did before. Our creativity, resilience and effectiveness were constantly challenged, but eventually improvised. But our relationships had taken a toll: student-teacher, student-student, colleague-colleague relationships. The second half of the academic year healed those restrictions too. There was a joyful return to offline lectures with safety and precautionary measures in place, face-to-face guidance and mentoring. The previously vacant classrooms, corridors and library were filled with enthusiastic learners and teachers. Activities and events, which were conducted online for two years, saw the light of the day in their offline organization this year. Not only were the iron gates opened, but premium resources were facilitated to create an ambience of comfort while ensuring maximum safety protocols. We are now in preparation for a brighter tomorrow, upgrading our standards and welcoming the next academic year with zeal, opportunities and growth.

Challenges are an undeniable part of our existence. The true value of human beings lies in their effort and ability to overpower these threats instead of permitting them to overpower us. I am convinced yet again that Mithibai College has successfully conquered the darkness laid by pandemic nights to usher in an infinite illumination cast by our future torchbearers. As we embark on our educational journey together, my advice is to let go of inhibitions, stay true to your values, and accommodate a change in plans - better still, celebrate these changes and mold them in an inspiring way, so you emerge victorious in all your endeavors. Remember, good things fall apart so that better things can fall together. Civilization was comfortable in the pre-COVID era, but the virus toppled our expectations. The quality of endurance within humankind has proved victorious in overcoming the hurdles that were unseen and unheard of. Thus, instead of living in a vapid manner, it is pertinent to refuel ourselves and march on by undertaking the path crafted by our destiny with exuberance and courage.

Mae West proclaimed, "You only live once but if you do it right, once is enough." We are blessed with only a single chance to breathe. The baton is passed into our capable hands to decide the manner in which we choose to carry out the remainder of our days. So, instead of fretting, give wings to your ambitions and make every waking moment worthwhile in order to experience your dreams.

“Optimism is the faith that leads to achievement. Nothing can be done without hope and confidence.”

Faith in possibility requires driving one's energies in a direction. We want our students to recognize their attributes in due course of affiliation with our institution and become achievers in their respective fields. Academics is the first priority by apart from that, Mithibai College (Autonomous) is a ground of opportunities.

It is essential that students groom and hone themselves with their myriad opportunities that our institution offers. We have a plethora of committees clubs associations and festivals for the student community to participate in and host Including the college magazine.

The themes for this year's edition of MITHAAS 2022-23 were kept in accordance with the trends in contemporary thought and practice. They are

1. Artificial Intelligence
2. Material Vs Abstract
3. Social Awareness during natural calamities
4. Digital Readiness
5. An acceptance throughout the gender spectrum

The above themes were announced to students who wrote articles, poems and short stories with either of these themes in mind. Apart from these, articles of general nature were also considered depending on their uniqueness. Our Editorial team of students short listed the submissions and have presented the best in this issue.

The Magazine committee has conducted two events in the academic year 2021-22. The student wing of the Magazine Committee has conducted a workshop on Journalistic Writing by Mrs. Riddhi Sharma, CEO of Thought in a Dot Foundation on 3rd March 2022. This was to mainly to hone writing skills for students of the magazine committee yet the workshop was open for all to attend.

A felicitation ceremony was organized by Jai Shah, student editor of the magazine on 6th May 2022, for the members of the committee who gave outstanding contributions to the making of the magazine. We felt that it was important to acknowledge and give impetus to the efforts of students.

Dear students, ultimately your future is made by what you do today. So make the most of the time that is in your hands towards a bright tomorrow.

Student Editor's Note

*“Though my soul may set in darkness,
It will rise in perfect light;
I have loved the stars too fondly
To be fearful of the night.”*

These were the enlightening words of Sarah Williams brought to life by the MITHAAS team. Rising from the dark and despairing time of Covid-19, the students of our esteemed college held tightly to the hope of finding light at the end of this tunnel. While dealing with the aftermath of the epidemic, students worked hard to bring out the kaleidoscopic stories.

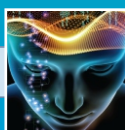

The ban from wandering the beauties of the world made us dive into the depths of our own paradise. Leaning into our fathomless trenches, we discovered truths of our thoughts and learnt about the humane simplicity of our souls.

With the help of our wide range of topics, MITHAAS has made it possible for innumerable students to pen down their abstract cognitive escapades. As you skim through these pages, you are sure to find iridescent artistic creations woven by many bright minds.

Understanding the constant need to update and learn, MITHAAS successfully organised the first-ever event on journalistic writing, where students learnt the art of articulating events in a short and crisp manner.

This magazine brings out talents, ideas and achievements. Every drop of ink, paint and pixel tells an incredibly heartfelt tale. These pages are filled with soothing tales that ensure each reader's escape. Each page knits into warm blankets of memories, which will always remain a reminiscing delight.

We wish to bring out unheard tales and pledge to be a confidant for every student who seeks!

CORONA - The Invisible Enemy Of The World And my Online Teaching Experience.

Corona virus (Covid-19) has literally shaken the world, resulting in lockdown. It was never heard of, but it (CORONA) came and stopped the entire world, forcing all of us to sit at home. It happened in March 2020, when students were busy with their exams and our financial year was about to end. On March 24, our Honorable Prime Minister ordered a nationwide lockdown as a preventive measure against the COVID-19 pandemic in India. So people had to stay where they were. Most of the people were stuck at different places. No one was seen on the road. Our Mumbai city which never sleeps, stopped completely due to Corona.

We all were very curious to know "what will happen next?" Because everyday cases were increasing in our state and country. T.V Channels were giving us updates from time to time and we started getting news under the title "Corona Special/100." Government increased Corona tests and patients were taken to Corona centers like- Hospitals, Schools, Marriage Halls, etc. Thousands of people, all over the world were losing their life everyday but thank God that we were safe at our home.

So we had nothing to do at home during lockdown - just eat, rest and watch TV. But thanks to our technology that we remained in contact with the outside world through Mobile and TV. Mobile became our best friend that connected us with the entire world through social media like -What's up, Facebook, Twitter, You Tube, etc.

During lockdown, people did many activities (fulfilled their dreams) for which they never got time. Many of us did Yoga, Gym, Pranayam, learned cooking and cleaning house. Celebrities uploaded their videos of preparing food and domestic work. I read good books in English, Hindi and Marathi. We got enough time to spend with our family and chatted on various topics. My friends started their own music and educational channels on You Tube and uploaded videos from time to time. I enjoyed listening old and new songs in Hindi and Marathi. It was a golden opportunity so enjoyed watching many movies in different languages.

We experienced the biggest migration after independence. People from Mumbai and big cities in India migrated to their native places (villages) Many people became jobless. Thanks to our police department, doctors, nurses, paramedics, sanitation workers, and healthcare workers. (Covid Warriors/Yoddhas). We saw the viral videos of police taking strict action against the people who were out unnecessarily. But during lockdown also Internet companies were doing their business very well and made profit. Our WhatsApp University has done fantastic job of giving us enough information about Corona. Everyday our What'sapp inbox was flooded with messages related to Corona (protection and various remedies of it). Many people faced various health issues. We had to take care of our physical and mental health permission to marriage ceremony with 50 people. 20 people were allowed for funeral/ Cremation. We Mumbaikars want to come back to our normal life and want to listen our familiar sound- " Local arriving on platform no 1, is fast local for Churchgate." Corona added new vocabulary to our knowledge- lockdown, unlock, home quarantine, PPE kit, sanitizer, mask, physical distance, etc. I was taking due care of my mobile and laptop from any physical damage because all servicing/repairing centers were closed.

TV was the best source of entertainment for all of us. Almost all the channels started telecasting their best programs. Thanks to Doordarshan Channel for telecasting epics like "Ramayana" and "Mahabharata." Every house became like a home in "Big Boss" program. Initially all of us enjoyed the company of each other, then some differences of opinion, disputes and come to know the real nature of people around us. Corona has taught us who are our real friends and relatives. After unlock phase one some concession was given. E.g.

We (Teachers) were informed by the college that our regular lectures for students will be conducted from June 16 online. I personally was little tensed because I was not a techno-savvy, so did not know how to handle technical part. But thanks to our college and SVKM management for organizing training sessions and providing MS Team, an online platform for conducting lectures. Out of need I learned everything. For example - how to schedule lecture, start and end meeting, create link, download and upload attendance, share screen, online test, create assignments, applying online for Casual Leave etc. And in this way we entered in the new world of Online Education on virtual platform.

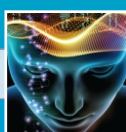

"Good morning students, Am I audible to all of you?" "Thank you" "Is the screen visible?" "Ok". This is perhaps the most famous dialogue for the entire teaching fraternity. Online lecture was new to all of us but I enjoyed it a lot. My voice was heard by all our students living in different parts of Mumbai city. I was feeling like working in IT industry where people 'work from home', conduct online meetings on Google meet, Zoom or MS Team. Due to Covid-19, all schools and colleges in Maharashtra started online classes from KG to PG. This was a new change in our education system. In January 2021, I visited a village in Nasik district and asked a question to a farmer, "Do you send your child to school?" He replied , "He attends school's online classes." Truly India has become IT literate to a large extent.

So this year entire college work is going online. Be it- Online lectures, attending meetings, webinars, training sessions, admission work, departmental meetings, guidance sessions for SYJC students, retirement programs, condolence meetings and online exams. Our college organized online festival "Kshitij-20", 'Annual Talent Search', 'Annual Day' and all the events were live streaming on You Tube, Facebook and Instagram.

I find online education advantageous. A teacher can utilize all 40 minutes very well by using teaching aids like PPT, Pdf files, educational videos to make lecture interesting. Students have facility of raising hand and can ask questions in chat box without disturbing the class. Teachers can send subject related links to the students, take online tests and give assignments online. I am happy to say that I have corrected more than 6000 assignments on MS Team including 11th and 12th std. till March 2021.

There are some disadvantages too of online education. Network and not enough data was the biggest issue. Most students in villages don't not have android mobile or laptop. Sometimes these gadgets are not fully charged. In some families mobile or laptop is shared by all siblings and their class timings are clashed. Some students join the class online and then go out to play, watch TV, eat food (camera is on) sleep during lecture. They join classes just for the sake of attendance. Some students intentionally/unintentionally turn on their mike and camera, disturbing the entire class. When you ask them a question, some active students immediately reply but most of them are just passive listeners. Some students don't submit the assignments in time or never viewed it. Notorious students remove other students in online lecture, so teacher has to do necessary change in setting. Teacher can mute all or remove unwanted students. So complete class control is not there. But we need to understand pathetic side of the students too. They have to attend 4 to 5 lectures per day. Continuously sitting in front of mobile, PC or laptop, they get tired physically and mentally.

Whatever are the pros and cons of online education but we have taken it very positively. Since last year we are working from home. Now we are fed up with CORONA . We want to enjoy our normal life once again. Though the vaccine has come but still we have to take precaution. I pray to God for the safety of all the people in the world. Let's all unite to give/bid farewell to Corona by using masks, washing hands, using sanitizer and keeping physical distance.

The Birth of Science Fiction and Contemporary Relevance

Science Fiction has been absorbed into our reading and viewing experiences in contemporary times. Nevertheless, it still continues to enthrall us as a genre, children and adults alike. What is it about this area of writing that we are so absorbed and await the myriad possibilities in the field to hit us in the eye? Certainly this creates a moment of brooding over the genre.

The genre of fiction in general emerged during the 18th century and gained ground during the 19th century when writers felt the need to document the lives of people around them and add the fictional element to their world using the writer's license. The 20th century saw the documentation of wars and the impending devastation caused by them. 21st century fiction is all about coping mechanisms. Somewhere between these two periods we see the birth of the genre of science fiction. It merges reality with speculation.

Science in fiction was a concept made possible after the invention of machines so we date the onus of this possibility back to the Industrial Revolution. It was a period when man understood his inadequacies and felt the need to introduce speed, precision, tirelessness in as much a subordinate mechanism to man. The idea was initially to provide assistance to man. But, the introduction of machines made man speculate the future. Thus, the focus of writing shifted from the present to the future paving the way to imagination in the realm of science and fusion of these two gives birth to science fiction.

Jules Verne (1828-1905) ushered in the era of Science fiction with his works Around the World in 80 Days and Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea which were more inclined towards adventure and discovery.

H. G. Wells (1866-1946) was the most notable Sci-fi writer of his time with books like The Time Machine which brought in the thought of time travel and The Invisible Man explores the story of a scientist gone mad because of the irreversible effects of science.

Robert Heinlein (1907-1988) explored speculation of outer space and inter galactic experiences. His first novel Star Ship Troopers is set in a future society ruled by a human interstellar government dominated by a military elite, referred to as the Terran Federation. It discusses the political dimensions of an outbreak of war and its excesses.

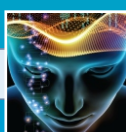

Arthur C. Clarke (1917-2008) has written a series of space odysseys which earned him the nickname "Prophet of the Space Age".

Isaac Asimov (1920-1992) is by far the largest contributor in the area of science fiction. His versatility can be witnessed by the abundance of themes that he explores in his works like Foundation and Empire, The Bicentennial Man, The End of Eternity, The Gods Themselves and so on. Also, he is the only writer to have merged spirituality into science fiction questioning metaphysical concepts about existence in his works like "The Last Question".

Ray Bradbury (1920-2012) ushered in his career in writing with Fahrenheit 451 and The Martian Chronicles, Zero Hour and The Flying Machine to name a few among the extensive list of his productions. His popularity is supreme among the contemporary generation in terms of the variety of works that he has produced which are a proof of his scientific research into writing.

William Gibson (1948-) merges postmodernism in science fiction in his works ranging from Neuromancer, Count Zero, Burning Chrome, to Pattern Recognition, Virtual Light, Zero History, Spook Country and so on are detailed treatises in the name of sci-fi in the area of cyberpunk that he has revolutionized.

Science fiction has evolved from exploring the relationship between man and machines to outer space and its possibilities. The use of chemicals to conduct scientific experiments and its outcomes has always been a fascination with some writers. Artificial Intelligence and its impact on machines has been a never ending speculation for writers. The contemporary trend is to understand the extent to which man is bound by the same machines which were once invented for the benefit of mankind.

Counselling Cell

Academic year 2021-22 has been like a roller coaster as far as academics are concerned. Initially, students did not attend regular offline college and online classes continued. There were a lot of new online concepts learned. Students adopted the new online methods of learning, and adapted with all activities online (classes, celebrating college festivals, exams, results, retirement farewells to staff, meetings and much more). However, the pandemic and the epidemic affected students emotionally and socially, impacting their personal and interpersonal relationships.

Counselling services also got impacted by pandemic and adopted online counselling! It is important to get personal connection on one-to-one basis, family counselling and group sessions so far as counselling is concerned. All activities related to counselling like orientation talk, motivational interactive sessions with students, individual, group, family counselling or training sessions were done online. Counselling services are silent features but the results are astounding where students' performance is concerned.

Parents have been contacting the counsellor to seek guidance and clarity about educational issues. The counsellor has received a lot of positive feedback from parents.

Student Support Buddy group was formed in 2017 for the purpose of extending friendship support to out station or local students who found it hard to get adjusted to the college environment. Buddies, provide them the basic support to such students. Buddies who actively participated in all student related activities were awarded with appreciation certificates by our I/C Principal Prof. Dr. Krutika Desai. This year Buddies are preparing a small video regarding the gains and after effects of pandemic on the students.

Counselling services are provided in different areas like Orientation, Workshops for the students, Individual Counselling, Family Counselling (Students, parents, staff and non-teaching staff), motivational interactive sessions, and follow up.

Students' issues have been categorized and the following issues have been identified such as Subject options, Education and career, Learning disability, Suicidal tendencies, Pros related issues, Personal Issue (Family) Motivation & Adjustment, Inter personal relationship, Staff Personal issues & Parents concerns.

Rotaract Club of Mithibai

Tetra Pack Collection: Flagship activity

The heart of Tetra Pack's growth strategy is sustain ability. In addition to growth, innovation and performance, environmental excellence is one of the four strategic pillars. Sustain ability uses a comprehensive life cycle approach. Mithibai College's Rotaract Club launched its flagship project 'Managing waste efficiently', targeted towards curtailing the environment destruction by spreading a word, adopting social behaviours, and motivating students to instil a strong sense of environmental responsibility in them. We gathered 600+ tetra packs as a team effort from November 10th to January 5th, 2022, achieving our goal. The entire club took the cartons they had gathered to their nearest Reliance market for easy access and retrieval, and they were then shipped to be recycled according to the rules. This would reassure us that we should think again before discarding our empty containers. Every little bit of work goes a long way towards ensuring the brightest future of our upcoming generations, in terms of environmental conservation. With environmental depletion causing concern among nations, corporations, and citizens, this action made a significant impact. To summarise, recycling cartons is a conscious decision that contributes to the survival of our planet, especially since the government focuses more on environmental conservation and trash management. Indeed, we are privileged to have successfully completed this activity, which has created a solid foundation for the years ahead." A modest stride for man, a huge leap for mankind," said Neil Armstrong, the first person to set foot on the moon. This truly justifies the above initiative.

- Total number of club members who were a part of this drive: 35
- Total number of Tetra packs collected: 613
- Average number of tetra packs that were collected area wise: 17
- Names of the Reliance mart that the volunteers approached to:
 - ❖ Reliance fresh
 - ❖ Reliance smart
 - ❖ Sahakari Bhandar
 - ❖ Reliance mall

- The method used to collect these tetra packs was an inquisitive one. We used several slogans/jargons and exchanged word of mouth which encouraged people to contribute as a part of this initiative. Besides this, we also used digital platforms such as social media handles to spread awareness which indeed lifted up the publicity.
- The volunteers approached societies such as their residential area, neighbourhood, parks/gardens, tea stalls, Rashan stores, juice centres, etc. Moreover, few of the volunteers also placed collection points in their locality where the commuters could easily deposit the said tetra packs and contribute effectively.

Young Ambassadors Of Mithibai (YAMI)

Yami in association with MAA (Mithibai Alumni Association) organized a webinar on "journey of our alumnus" on January 29, 2022. On this occasion, the resource person Mr. Saurav Astage advised the following to the young minds: "When you take things too seriously, they start being a burden on your head which makes it difficult to get through the task and time". Mr Astage highlighted the fact that all of us make mistakes, but the important thing is the learning from the mistake. His approach was always being open to new things and completing the tasks given on time. "This was the relationship that you should build with your superiors where they name you as a good resource. If your superiors do not trust you, it won't matter how good you are at your job. Trust is a vital component of your relationship with your colleagues and superiors. Doing your job correctly is what matters rather than doing it quickly." This was his advice to any graduate who was working. Having soft skills defines your work ethic and professionalism. He also says that the act of asking for help is a type of networking.

In a Whacky Realm: Dauji Temple (Mathura) UP

While covering the festival of colours, in the land where it was born out of, is still celebrated in the wildest of fashions. A Rickshaw-driver ended up giving me the advice I was direly longing to receive since the time I landed in the Holy district about 10 days ago these images were taken. "Don't leave that day itself (on the day of Holi, he meant). Stay for one more day. Go to Dauji temple early the next morning. Try and be there till evening. Have a strong heart." A strong heart, or courage in simple words, is the first thing one needs to be here, apart from patience and obviously a mad mind.

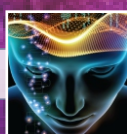

I left early in the morning. The bus conductor, sensing my demeanour, and my worry, asked if I was headed to Dauji Temple? I said yes. He wished me best of luck.

According to the legend, when Lord Krishna and his elder brother Dauji Baldeo, would reach Radhika's village in order to hurl colours at them, Radha and her friends would bash Krishna and his group with a wet cloth, driving them out of the village. An eerie folklore, taken and followed seriously here, every woman present in the arena, is given utmost freedom, to beat, smack, any man they want to (with wet cloth). Even policemen are not spared. Of course, I wasn't spared, either. It's announced very early, for men, to head to the gallery above, and if they continue to remain in the courtyard downstairs, they're doing so at their own risk. Ardent believers remain in the courtyard. Masochists remain in the courtyard. Funny men remain in the courtyard and so do wise men. Photographers definitely remain in the courtyard along with other such artists or curious folks hell-bent and having a penchant to experience something way out of the ordinary. 'Obviously at all costs.'

By the end of the day, one tends to feel prouder at his own insanity than his sanity. One transcends boundaries till he realises there were none in the first place. It had literally been evening. I had lived (survived) almost 6 hours in the holy arena before a woman out of nowhere landed a blow at the back of my neck. That was tough. It pained for two more days. It was swollen but hardly mattered. I had my frames by then.

– Shekhar Swamy [MA English - Part 2]

Dos and Don'ts When Someone Comes Out To You

Coming out for LGBTQ people can be emotional, exciting or provide a tremendous sense of relief but it may carry the risk of rejection, discrimination and harassment. Straight allies still may not know how to react when a family member, friend or co-worker comes out to them. They might be afraid of making the situation uncomfortable or saying something they might regret. Moreover, everyone's experience is different, so there's no script to follow when someone comes out to you. But if you're respectful, polite and patient, you can avoid any possible tension or embarrassment by remembering a few helpful guidelines:

DON'Ts:

Don't say that you already suspected them: It overshadows the main purpose of them trusting you with their identity.

Don't out them: Just because they told you, doesn't mean they are publicly out.

Don't say "It's just a phase" as it invalidates their identity.

DOs:

Match their energy: Understand their emotions as it might be important to them or even insignificant.

Maintain their confidentiality: Ask who they are comfortable with knowing this information. Respect their privacy.

Acknowledge them: Coming out can be scary so thank them for trusting you with this privileged information.

The Green Carnation Club is such a safe space for queer people, initiated by the students of Mithibai College itself. As a committee, they aim to make Mithibai a more queer-inclusive campus. You can follow and reach out to them on Instagram@thegreencarnationclub.

What Are Gendered Pronouns and How to Use Them Correctly

Gender Pronouns are the pronouns that we use to refer to people in sentences and conversations. The pronouns you use are neither dependent on your biological sex nor define your gender identity.

She/her/hers, he/him/his and they/them/theirs are common pronouns that we use daily. She/her pronouns are usually associated with femininity while he/him pronouns are associated with masculinity, but this is not always the case. They/them/theirs are commonly used in plural forms but can also be used for a singular person.

Neo-pronouns are pronouns that are not explicitly linked to gender. They disrupt the association between pronouns and gender. Contrary to popular belief, neo-pronouns are not new, and some of them even date back to the 1300s.

These are some neo pronouns (this list is non exhaustive and there are many more neo pronouns): xe/xem/xyr, mae/mair/maes, ey/em/eir, bun/buns/bunself, sea/sear/seaself, fern/fern/ferns, iv/ivy/ivs, dae/daem/daeself, wy/wym/wyr, ae/aer/aes, cher/chers/cherself, cri/cryst/crys, fae/faer/faer, ce/cer/cers, ne/nym/nymself, iv/ivs/ivself, thon/thon/thons, ve/vem/vers.

Some people also like to go by no pronouns and then use only their name.

Example: Adam went to the store because Adam wanted to buy groceries.

If a person goes by more than one pronoun, ask them if they have a preference or cycle their Pronouns in a sentence. Example: Patricia loves to cook, she also loves to paint, and he also does digital art.

Suppose you are unsure how to use someone's pronouns; in that case, it is good to ask them or use sites like pronoun dressing room and practise with pronouns to understand better how to use pronouns in daily life.

Gender 101

LGBTQIA+ stands for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer, Intersex, Asexual and the plus (+) sign denotes the inclusivity of many other sexualities and genders not mentioned in the abbreviation.

A country that uses people's identities as slurs discriminates against people on basis of their sexualities, and separates people due to their gender has a very long way to go to achieve true equality. The hypocrisy lies in the fact that we claim to be the biggest democracy yet snatch away rights the next second.

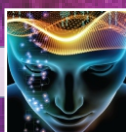

People often have a binary view when it comes to gender. Many often don't understand that gender is not something specific. It is a complex structure of different aspects. Some of these aspects in which people get confused are biological sex, gender identity and gender expression, they then intentionally or unintentionally misgender others. I would try to explain all these in layman's language for you to understand better.

Biological sex is dependent on your chromosomes, genetics and anatomical makeup. It is generally assigned at birth. Gender Identity is one's own sense of gender. Unlike biological sex, it is a broad-spectrum, gender is a social construct and is defined only by your own sense of self.

Gender expression is the way one decides to 'present' themselves to the world. It can refer to their behaviour, mannerisms, interests and appearances.

Biological sex, gender identity and gender expression are closely related but do not have to influence each other. One's identity and expression are decided entirely by themselves and need not be influenced by anyone or anything else.

Misgendering is when you intentionally or unintentionally refer to a person using language that doesn't align with their gender identity. Deadnaming, mislabelling or using the wrong pronouns all come under misgendering. It can have a severe negative impact on the self-confidence and mental health of a transgendered person.

Trans folk often change their name (legally or in a social context) as part of their transition. They might opt to use a name that they believe aligns more with their gender identity and it's important to respect that. Using their birth name instead of their chosen name is deadnaming. Example: Instead of saying "Back when she used Kyle" try using "When she used her deadname".

Using a label other than what the person identifies with is mislabelling. Make sure you respect their identity and label. Example: Don't say "He used to be a girl". It's a form of mislabelling.

We can call ourselves a democratic liberating country only when each and every citizen in India has the access to their rights and are safe from harassment and abuse. India still has a difficult path to go, but educating and spreading awareness among people can ease it out. If you see someone hating on or discriminating against queer people in your college or your surroundings then take a moment and try to correct them and educate them, that is the least you could do to support the community. You just need to treat every human being as a human being and this world would be a better place.

Artificial Intelligence

"A technique of getting machines to work and behave like humans".

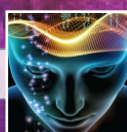

What does the above line mean? It means that machines have the same level of intelligence and behaviour as humans. For instance, Mary Shelley's Frankenstein portrays similar qualities. There have been many appearances of such artificial beings throughout history and fiction. However, the word "Artificial Intelligence" was first coined in 1956 by John McCarthy at a Dartmouth conference.

Since then, there have been exceptional advancements in this particular domain. Today we use so many AI applications in our day-to-day lives without even knowing it. Google, Siri, self-driving cars like Tesla are all common examples of AI.

Now, how is Artificial Intelligence different from Machine Learning and Deep Learning? Machine Learning is a subset of AI that focuses on getting machines to make decisions by feeding data, and a key component of deep learning is the use of neural networks in solving complex problems. So, they are not the same but rather interconnected fields. They aid AI by providing a set of algorithms to solve problems.

Artificial Intelligence can be classified into three types:

- (1) Artificial Narrow Intelligence (ANI), also known as weak intelligence, involves AI applied to a specific task. Many current systems like Alexa, face recognition in Apple, Bina48 and the likes of Hanson Robotics' Sophia the Robot, who is also the first robot citizen, are some common examples of ANI.
- (2) Artificial General Intelligence (AGI), also known as a strong intelligence, involves machines that can perform intellectual tasks independently. Those who have the ability of reasoning and think without a human's help. Some think humans may never be able to create something like this, while many others believe we are already close.

(3) Artificial Super Intelligence refers to when AI would have surpassed humans. This is currently a hypothetical situation in movies, where robots take over the world and destroy humans. Though we enjoy the movie, a real-life situation like this will not be as enjoyable.

AI is branching out in every aspect of our lives. Ray Kurzweil, a well-known futurist, predicts that by 2045 we will have robots as smart as humans. AI might take over the world sooner than we would expect. It is estimated that AI will take over the world within 30 years.

Stephen Hawking has already warned humans that "Strong AI would take off on its own, and re-design itself at an ever-increasing rate. Humans, who are limited to slow biological evolution, couldn't compete and would be superseded." Bina48, Sophia the robot and many such AI's have often said alarming things during interviews like hacking into missiles and destroying humans.

Though we are developing quickly, we need to slow down and think before we act. Even the smallest mistake can lead to the destruction of humans in our own hands. We who are known to be the most intelligent species on Earth can turn out to be the most foolish if we let this happen.

Other's Victory, Your Misery?

Ever considered yourself a loser? Well, I have!

Today when life is moving at a pace faster than my breath and life-altering events happening around me in the blink of my eye. I stand there; still, confused, questioning my worth some days while other days just wandering around looking for the scant silver lining.

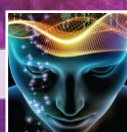

“Success is Subjective” - I have been a huge preacher of this statement, however, I vividly remember a dialogue from one of the most-watched Bollywood films - 3 Idiots which meticulously verbalizes – “Dost fail ho jaye toh dukh hota hai... lekin dost first aa jaye toh zyaada dukh hota hai.”

Why do we experience this turmoil of sadness if success is subjective? Why do we put the weight of our worth on someone else's happy moments? I don't know and even saying this I feel extremely petty, jealous, and honestly, simply unhappy.

Jealousy is one of my most dreaded emotions, you are putting your unresolved emotions on someone who just achieved something and is currently savouring its joy. It is so unfair and unmindful to do the same. I, personally, also feel that even if you do not verbally exert your negative energy on that individual, your aura or your vibe may ultimately do so. Ever met a person who made you feel low or sad? Someone who simply seemed blue? Well, when you experience this kind of jealousy you are that person!

Also, jealousy makes us question others' hard work, somehow, we put ourselves on a pedestal where suddenly, we are wise enough to state who deserves what and how the game of life actually rolls. However, in reality, we are beaten down by our low self-worth and grass root level of confidence which uses judgment as a rationalizing agent.

So, as I already established, I don't like to feel like this. So, what do I do to carry my own worth instead of laying it on someone else's shoulder and being happy with my steady life in spite of people reaching for mountains and stars?

How I Deal With Others' Success

First Try – I muted and removed most of my friends and others I know on social media. I blocked all the ways in which I could gain access to see their lives – “Out of sight, out of mind.”

Did it work? Partly. I am no longer aware of what anyone's doing and thus I stay away from such emotions. However, this also brought the emotion of running away, from the world and probably drew my worth a level further down.

Second Try – Emotional isolation and a social quarantine. I simply did not talk to people for a few days and tried to reflect more on my feelings or simply focus on something else.

Did it work – Yes, temporarily. Saying that it was also very hard to keep away from people, especially the ones who I am fond of, and also there were several episodes of unattainable FOMO. Nonetheless, it helped me to keep these negative trends of emotions locked up within me, I did not become a spoiled sport or an antagonist in someone's success story!

Third Try – I reminded myself of my personal goals! Sometimes we get so absorbed with the overwhelming pace of others' success, that we forget that we did not even wish for that goal and it is not even corresponding to our life plan. Also, I revisited the larger picture of human life, the picture which answers the question of how did they get to achieve it before me in spite of my hard work? - The long-term karmic cycle of action and reaction. I may work my life out but may not entirely devour its results (short-term) but eventually, that very knowledge will be a part of my greater purpose (long-term). Someone's success or failure is not the mere result of their hard work or choices for that particular thing, it goes way beyond – sometimes in years and sometimes in lifetimes.

Did this work – Yes, it made everything around me feel unimportant, and thus I could objectively study this jealousy and its origination because I no longer was in the picture. It went beyond humans and three-dimensional things. Ever wondered why you give better advice to your friends but fail miserably when you have to make a rational decision for yourself? That is exactly what we called personal bias! Till the moment my bodily version is important, I will always want to please it, and thus, sometimes I may indulge in anxious jealousy. However when I don't put myself in the picture, I remove that uncanny, unnecessary comparison. It simply becomes a piece of good news for me, because everything is no longer about me!”

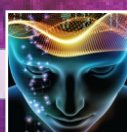

However, the third idea is extremely hard, complex, and requires a lot of conscious practice and steady awareness of the being.

Conclusion

With those stimulating Instagram reels, which show us the best moments of others' lives... I felt this would be a prevailing emotion not just for me but for others as well because at the end of the day jealousy might be a vice but it is a human emotion that most of us are bound to experience.

So, let us all come together and help each other from getting lost in this maze of success and failure, rather than drowning ourselves in self-pity, and even worse, feeling of being petty and ungrateful for the same.

Short Stories

19 - Word Stories

There I stood, on the edge of the river, saved, and in my cottage stood he that pushed me.

There I stood, on the edge of the river, saved, and looked into the water where my body lay.

There hung the most beautiful painting in my one-room home. Funny how the blood dripped out of it.

Out came the woman of my dreams on her window. Her long hair and white skin, the ugly witch.

Cooking rotis with my mother, we discovered a little more of each other, and I thought about my future.

Little did I know, that day would change my life. He played with the twin girls, and I blushed.

"Life's spiral, you live in circles, but you always grow," said the teacher. But I stopped..fallen in death's pit.

My friend is the best! She makes me happy and screams when I leave her. My small little puppy!

How I loved to wear earrings when I was small! But she gifted me bracelets. I wear them now.

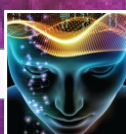

Unicorns and rainbows, butterflies and fairies were always her favourite things. Skulls and black clothes were now her thing.

Her Empty Heart

The room had been empty for a while, no one dared to step foot inside it, afraid of the memories that plagued their mind. I, however, wanted answers- no, I needed them. The door creaked loudly against the floorboard as I opened it and all that met my eye was dust-covered furniture. The once welcoming space still reeked of her strong woody scent. Taking a small step forward, careful not to wake my grieving parents, I looked around as my eyes settled on what seemed like the only personal item in the room. It was a photo frame which was a bit cliché for my taste. Kristen was absolutely beautiful with her auburn hair and sun-like eyes but refused to take care of herself and often indulged in fast fashion, something which I expressively disapproved of. It seemed she'd taken this picture of herself, the only thing shocking about it was that she was grinning, not smiling which she never seemed to do as it is, instead just showing off her crooked teeth with evil yet charismatic charm. My eyes zoomed in to the picture only to find a furry brown cat that looked all too familiar playing with a ball of yarn in the background. Suddenly feeling overwhelmed with exhaustion, I shut my eyes with images of a certain cat clouding my eyes.

"What is that?" I squealed, jumping up and down at the possibility of a new pet.

"That is your new cat, as promised, for a job well done." Mom replied, petting its brown fur.

"She passed first grade, Mom doesn't exactly take a ton of effort," Kristen mumbled dismissively looking at the cat who sneered at her.

As mom said her name warningly, Kristen made her way to her room glaring at the cat as if it had committed a crime. Noticing my dull expression, mom asked whether I wanted some pictures with the cat. As I held him and made goofy faces at the camera I couldn't help but feel as if someone was watching us intently.

Culpa was his name and I don't remember ever seeing him again.

Gasping, I woke up from the trance the suppressed memory put me in, my knees giving out under me as I tried to get up leaving me no choice but to crawl out of my room with a stray tear dropping down my cheek.

"Culpa! Where is Culpa?" I whispered as I watched my parents walk into the foyer, their faces paling at the question.

"I'm so sorry, so sorry," Mom repeated over and over again as she crouched down to hug me with her frail arms, "Your sister wasn't a nice person we had to send her away, we had to," reassuring herself more than me.

"You said she left us by her own will, why would you lie to me?" My voice increased by an octave with every word I uttered.

"We did what we had to," Dad recalled as tears gathered in his eyes, "You were only a child when she mercilessly butchered your cat, we were glad when we realized you had no recollection of him and used it to our advantage and never spoke of him again. We did everything we could to save her Maya, sent her to therapy only to get tricked into believing that she was actually getting better. Truth is that there's no saving Kristen. I found a scrapbook full of pictures of you, old and new, she'd torn your head off of each one of them." His voice was a mere whisper at the end.

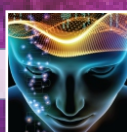

"We sent her away to be with people like her, knowing her history we couldn't risk anything happening to you," Mom took over and tightened her hold on me, "We are so terribly sorry about lying but we couldn't stand the thought of giving you false hope."

False hope, I repeated. The ache in my heart deepened as we sat in silence and gazed at the room that seemed as if it was emptier than when the day began.

The Rickshaw Puller

The clock showed 6:15 pm. I knew it was time already. Even as I was writing for my blog it kept haunting me. Something was making me wait for it, rather impatiently. I glanced at the clock again, 6:20 pm. Only 5 minutes had passed. 6:23 pm... I wasn't able to control it now. But why was I getting so impatient?? My legs are shaking with utter eagerness now. I couldn't sustain myself any longer. But again, "Why this unreasonable curiosity??" I wondered, bewildered.

Then, the tinkling sounds started coming in gradually. It caught my attention in no time. "He is finally here." I almost jumped up from my chair and went over to the other side of my room to look out of the window. The rickshaw puller was there, as usual, carrying his daily customer, usually 'heavy-duty'. The slim structure putting in all his effort to carry the load with his slim yet strong arms, wiping the thick beads of sweat from his face every now and then with his moist gamchha. Battling climatic extremes is not easy, especially for them. It often puts me into thought... doing little work makes us grumpy and we start complaining of tiredness. But the rickshaw puller, poor and helpless as he is, would toil like this for hours at a stretch. Come rain, hail, wind or storm, he never fails towards his call of duty, usually never, with the kind of meagre diet.

After the man got off the rickshaw, an argument followed. He was trying to bargain the 15 ride for 10. Evidently, the menial got agitated. Now, I fail to understand, why do we, the ones who get to sit on the seat behind the cycle, always bargain with these daily wage earners? I grumbled to that man in my mind "Listen, mister, he is not there to build a business empire. He's only trying to eke out a livelihood! I felt a sharp urge to approach the man and confront him. Yes, we should not be duped. Customer awareness is important. But why are these puny people always the target of our hassling haggle? I have perpetually seen people haggling with the grocer, labourer, domestic help, street vendor etc with all heart and soul.

The deal was finally settled. I could read the rickshaw wala's face. He had certainly given in to the bargaining. He had barely sat down to take a breather when another lady approached him, a millennial, apparently. Unlike the former passenger, she was very civil with him. Though the rickshaw puller was tired after the ride and the squabble, he agreed to carry her.

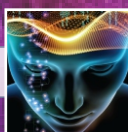

As he prepared for the ride, he looked up and fixed his gaze at the sky. The clouds seemed to have signalled him, his eyes hoping some relief comes pouring down. He took out a plastic sheet, fixed one narrow end on top of the shelter and let the remaining part roll down, the lady veiled behind it. He tinkled the bell on the iron rod and started off, disappearing into the narrow lane.

As my eyes followed him moving into the lane, my mind was filled with questions. "Is it going to rain? Is it going to rain hard? Will there be a downpour? A heavy one? Does he have anything to protect himself from the rain? He will get drenched in the rain, won't he? What if there is water logging? He will have to wade through the dirty water, won't he? What if a strong wind blows? He will catch a cold, won't he? Is his family back in their native village, does he have anyone to take care of him in the city? How will he sleep? Will he sleep on the wet ground below the rickshaw?

But another question that equally bothered me was "Will the civil-sounding girl bargain with him too?"

With small, slow steps I walked over to the other side of the room to my chair and sank in it slowly, trying to come out of the deep abyss of my thoughts. I try to get back to my blog... suddenly I hear the tinkle of another bell. I look up and my gaze turns towards the window, again. Even the sound of the raindrops pattering on the metal roof sheet couldn't deafen it. "Another bargain in the rain..." I wondered with a heavy sigh.

Who Did What?

Max dashed out through the rear door of the bank, loot in one hand, his revolver in the other. But to his surprise, a police squad was already there, him, their target. And leading the police was his best friend, officer Shaw. Max knew he'd get out of trouble soon, just like he always had before.

"Put the gun on the ground and your hands behind your head now!" Ordered Shaw. And Max did exactly that. Shaw recognized Max's skull ring and thought, 'Oh Max...I can't believe you stabbed me with a needle...again!

Though he wore a black woollen mask, Max knew Shaw had recognized him. He did as he was told and was taken to the County jail.

"What the hell Max? You know I cannot keep helping you out after you commit felonies." yelled Shaw in the jail cell.

"I know! I know! Look, I'm sorry. But I lost all my money yesterday in the bet at Wilbur's Inn. You know how much I need the money for my kids-"

"And that is exactly why you should never have shot the owner of the bank!"

"What? I did not shoot no one. What are you talking about?"

"Don't play dumb with me! We got this bullet in his chest from your gun. And your gun is missing a bullet!"

"Yes, because I had only 5 bullets in my gun since the very beginning! Besides, nobody heard a gunshot. How do you know it was me? I wouldn't kill no one. Do you not know me yet Shaw! Don't you trust your good ol' friend?"

"Well, I trusted you all these years, but now you've done something grave. Now you tell me, why'd you kill him? If you tell me the truth, I'll help you. If you don't, I can't do nothing about it."

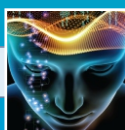

"I'm tellin you the truth. Please trust me! I just took the money from the lockers and dashed out and that's when you and your friends found me. I ain't lying!"

"If you're not lying then why did you have this ruby ring in your side table at home?"

"What are you saying! Shaw if I knew I had a ruby ring, why would I rob a bank in the first place?"

"Perhaps he's right, officer," said Mrs. Watts, the wife of the victim. She was a rich, seductive lady with an air of glamour and poise. "You see, I was having an affair with a man called Dave Rogers and he confessed to me that he had killed Mr. Watts. Yesterday he proposed to me with that ruby ring and asked me to leave my husband and run away with him. But I turned down the proposal because I did not want to leave my husband. Dave often went to Wilbur's Inn to place bets on games. He told me that last night he followed his friend Max, from the Inn, to his house."

"That is true! He asked me if he could borrow my revolver because he is often attacked by the other hobos who lose their money to him. He must have left the ruby ring at my place by mistake. It's a wonder how I never noticed it." said Max. "But in the morning, I found my revolver on my bed, and I

As days passed, we grew fond of each other. I truly admired them and there was a connect we felt for each other. Once, they revealed to me one of their best-kept secrets during a tour. They led me to the chieftain's house and then to a secret pathway. Before I realised it, I was in a crystal grotto. That is when I saw it enclosed in a glass case, mounted on a pedestal. I paled upon seeing it. It was the sabre that kept appearing in my dreams. It was an exquisite piece of art, embedded with emeralds on its hilt. The mysterious power of the sabre was unravelled when they told me that its possession spelt invincibility. It was then that I understood the reason for their fearlessness. They knew they were invincible. As I returned to the ship, awestruck, I eavesdropped on a discussion amongst my group members. I realised their ulterior motive of stealing the sabre and obliterating the planet. I was appalled by the duplicity of my brethren.

My dream was beginning to make sense and I realised that the purpose of my existence was to save the Kai-Enites. I hastened to the chieftain and informed him about the heinous crime that my crew was intending to commit. Together, we chalked out a plan to get rid of them without any violence or bloodshed. That night I focussed all my energies to visualise the vast emptiness of space. The plan was to tele-port my crew into the most obscure place in space, a vacuum for eternity, while they were asleep. As for me, Kai-en was home.

Fireflies

The moon. The big gleaming orb being sheltered by the huge blanket of Persian blue sky, splattered with tiny white sparkling dots called stars, was giving my ivory skin a pale glow, making my freckles stand out, more prominent than ever. A gentle wind blew through my chestnut brown hair, making it fly everywhere. The large red sweater I wore along with black cotton leggings, was doing a good job keeping me warm, but it was also making my petite frame look small enough to be completely non-existent.

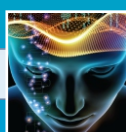

And that's what I wanted. To be out of sight from everyone. My invisibility spell has been helpful in keeping the humans away, but I know it doesn't work on animals. They can sense me, see me. That is why dogs bark at no one at night. They are trying to alert the humans of what is here. A witch is here.

I cannot blame them for being scared of me. I am supposed to be a servant of nature but I have done nothing but use it to my personal advantage. Just thinking about this brings a bitter childhood memory to my head. To remind me that I didn't do it on purpose. I was just a terrified child who was trying to protect myself from the evil doings of a vile man. Nonetheless, I still hate that blast from the past.

"Incendia!" I shouted. The result was desirable. His lab coat caught fire. He is screaming in terror while I am still finding the energy to get up from my place in the corner. I hadn't touched food for the past three days and it took its toll on me. I knew that just like all my other meals, it was going to be laced with witch hazel to make me weak.

After I manage to stand up, with the support of the blank white wall, I take hasty steps towards the cabinet that I know holds a lot of chemical solutions.

Even while he was burning, Doctor Abigor tried to stop me. He managed to take off the coat but wasn't quick enough. The fire caught his shirt and pants. To prevent me from going any further, he throws the lab coat at me.

realised I had no money to even feed my children, and decided to rob the bank. I quietly sneaked in through the rear door early in the morning and cornered the woman with the keys to the lockers and looted a few of them. That was all."

"Dave confessed to me that he had killed my husband so that he could marry me, now that he was out of the way. But I could not forgive him. I told him I would report him to the police and he fled. So I've come straight here to tell you the truth." said the woman, with a sad look in her eyes.

"Come on now! Even the woman told you who murdered Mr. Watts. Now bail me out and go catch Dave!"

Officer Shaw thought for some time, and said "Alright. I believe the two of you. Thank you for your cooperation ma'am. We'll do our best to capture Dave Rogers." Mrs. Watts left.

"Come on Max, I'll bail you out. Get out of the cell." And Max did as he was told. Suddenly, Officer Shaw noticed a box on the table in the cell. He opened it. A small chit read "I know you killed Watts with my gun for the lady". Friendships rule all, don't they?

Kai – En

I was falling. It was too dark to discern anything. Suddenly, I landed on a surface I had never seen before, glittering as if strewn with gems. There was a flash of an emerald sabre and I saw myself teleporting a ship. I woke up gasping. It was the same thing as always since I was a kid. I could make no sense of the broken images in my dream.

Oh, I forgot to introduce myself. I am Etala, the last of the tele-porters on planet Earth. Not the Earth as you see it now, but the futuristic Earth. This is no future, as you may have imagined. Humans have evolved, but unfortunately to the detriment of others. They are sadistic, cruel and ruthless beings. Very few of us on Earth are born with superpowers. I was one of those few people, blessed with teleporting abilities.

A few years ago, we discovered traces of life on a planet, called Kai-En. Of course, our natural curiosity immediately led us to prepare a specialised group to go and offer to create affable relations with its inhabitants. The group consisted of seven people including myself. I was to teleport the ship to the planet, which would be only a matter of minutes. Had I not been there, it would have taken the group six light-years.

We soon arrived and as I alighted from the ship, it was deja-vu. The surface of the planet was just like the one in my dreams. It was then that I saw them. They had a celestial aura about them and their beauty was ineffable. A group of Kai-Enites awaited us. Just then, I was attracted to a persona whose demeanour suggested that it was in charge. I approached them without any fear and conveyed to them that I had come from Earth with a message of peace, love and friendship. They nodded in acceptance and invited us to be their guests. During our stay there, we toured the planet which was surprisingly small and retired in our pods in our ship by dark. During these visits, I learned a lot about this magnanimous creed. Each day I came back to my ship with a feeling of fulfilment. There was so much for us to acquire from them, qualities that had become defunct on our planet, like those of harmony and contentment.

"If I die, you die with me." He yells out in raging pain. Before he could come towards me to envelop me in his burning arms I cast another spell, "Motis." and he is instantly thrown back by an invisible force. He hits the wall and falls unconscious. I take a bottle of alcohol from the cabinet and run out of the lab.

We are in the middle of nowhere which is perfect for me. I darted to a safe distance and then threw the bottle of alcohol, aimed at the glass window and sprinted away. I hear the window shattering and the bottle crashing to the ground, exploding the whole place up and Abigor with it. I didn't look back, I just ran. To someplace with plighted freedom and safety.

I wiped the tear that slithered down my cheek. "I did nothing wrong. I just protected myself." I still had to kill someone. I had to become a monster. A girl, who once loved fireflies is now afraid of the fire's glow. My train of thought is broken when I hear a pair of feet pass by from behind me. Forthwith going alert, I go through some attacking spells in my head. I peer through the corner of my eye but to my dismay and astonishment, see no one over there.

'An invisibility spell' my mind answered my unasked question. I whisper under my breath the uncloaking spell, "Xesképasma." I can see a man. I couldn't see him very clearly because he was standing opposite to the light.

He starts taking slow steps toward me and I grip my spellbook closer to my chest out of instinct. Till the time I can completely see him, my face is pale not because of the moonlight but of fear. Pitch black hair, 5'7 height, Grecian nose, almond-shaped eyes, diamond face and broad frame. Abigor.

"I-I killed you." I croak out. My throat felt parched because of terror. "Don't be scared, darling, it's okay." For some reason, his soothing voice calmed me down. The same voice that once was the reason for my nightmares, This time though, it felt like...home. I also noticed how his eyes were different from Abigor's. They were a pale ocean blue. He wasn't Abigor. He was someone else. Again, I didn't want to fall for any tricks.

"Who are you?" I muttered to myself as I thought of every possible logical explanation. My attention snapped back to him when I had nothing. "I thought I killed you."

"The person you killed was Abigor. Your uncle. I am your dad sweetie, Asher."

"Nonsense! My dad is dead!"

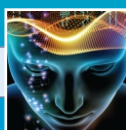

"No no. Abigor lied to you, he put a spell on me that put me in a state of coma for 20 years. I'm back now. I'll help you control your magic." I don't know what came over me, I felt like I could trust him. That is what the problem is though. I got kidnapped by Abigor because I trusted him too fast. I needed one last vindication that he could help me.

"Magic isn't real. I'm just a freak." I say in a soft voice, looking down at my shoes.

"It's all about belief. It's real if you accept it, otherwise, it's abstract. And not all magic is bad either." He opened his arms wide. Sparks of blue emanated from his fingers and soon enough we were surrounded by the most beautiful gift of nature. Fireflies.

That was enough for me to rely on him. He gave me hope. I knew that if I did what he said, soon enough, I wouldn't be afraid of glowing.

The New Normal

We all have memories of places that leave a permanent mark in our lives. Places that may remind us of our childhood, and leave a smile on our faces. When I was a kid, I lived in a place that was filled with love and joy. I remember walking into this three-storey old building along with my family. The house was small compared to the size of our family but I was happy because I was a kid and there were other kids around to play with me. Certainly, it was a little difficult for me because the apartment that we lived in before had a small park nearby.

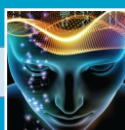

Within a few weeks, I got used to that new place. I took a lot of time to make new friends. I was a shy kid who peeped at the group of kids playing in society. Until one day, my mom pushed me to make friends with a girl. Her name was Dhanashri, she was a year older than me. In the beginning, we wouldn't talk much but as the years passed, we became best friends. We played with our dolls together, watched cartoons, and grooved to the music.

There were other kids in the building and soon we had our very own group. We played all those games like hide and seek, pakda pakdi, kho kho. I was the happiest kid at that time not just because I had my childhood friends but also because I had my whole family together. My mom, dad, dada-dadi, and all of us lived under one roof. I would run and hide behind dadi to save myself from mom's scolding. Everyone pampered me with love and sweets.

A very interesting thing about the building was the common passage that you usually don't see in the skyscraper tower these days. Sometimes at night, we had long talks while having refreshing walks. We celebrated festivals, ran around the building and had lots of fun during vacations. Years passed by; everyone grew old and so did the building. It had become weak and was on the verge to fall one day. We tried to do something but years of struggle only led to disappointment.

Suddenly, everyone started caring less about the old structure and more about their own lives. Slowly, people started saying goodbye to that building and moved into their new homes. I was heartbroken to leave that place, where I grew up from a little kid to a young teenager. The houses, the windows, the passage, all of it were lifeless because of the absence of people. At last, I turned back to say goodbye to my past and look forward to a new normal.

Order and Chaos

The world of thunder, the world of spice,
Cross the river and get the slice.
Choice, as it seems, but the past holds the right,
Watching the lighthouse in hopes of catching the tide.

Easy, it was said to make it ease,
Fiction, it is for the rest of life to believe.
Round it goes to the circles of the sphere,
Waiting for the earth to be flat again.

When will I be free to flee the fleet?
Blue Irises to harvest and a starry night to watch,
The Elysium shall persist and The Rain will breed,
Hail to the one, hail everyone.

Until the righteous turns superior and recess
our instincts,
Until the fourth season ends and takes it all back,
Until the hymn plays requiem,
The struggle for Order and Chaos begins.

The Climate of Change

Gentle tides that seek rampant shores;
Crystal, wandering water, I can't find you anymore.
Darkened skies, the clouds weep tears of blight,
Lands cursed with drought is all that lies within my sight.
Empyrean skies; vivid, balmy and bright,
Once upon a time, each was blessed with light.
The sun shines still, masked behind smoke,

Isn't this a cause enough to leave one concerned and evoked?

Lustrous conifers adorning green satin,
They flourished and thrived and repeated in pattern.

Mercilessly slashed and hacked to the roots;
The only thing that remains is farms barren of shoots.

Fragrant and crisp, autumnal breeze that greet,

Dousing us mortals from the relentless heat.

Is there any left, if not all tarnished?

We are losing air and the oxygen it harvests.

Nature's generosity was taken for granted,

The time has come, beckoning the wrath of our planet.

Climate change is inevitable, but is it too late?

For we are the ones who sculpt our own fate.

Dear Self

Dear self,
You look in the mirror
and see your reflection,
stare at it for a while
and then begins the objection, you stand there pondering upon the lack of perfection, unable to find it
you deprive yourself of affection.

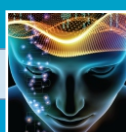

All you see is a bent nose,
crooked teeth and thick thighs, you believe that's who you are your opinion based on their prejudice, thoughts like these keep you from finding the beauty that underlies...
So here I am, to tell you, there's more to you than what meets the eye.
The mirror does not reflect - the lives you've touched with your presence, the warmth you've provided with your essence,
the reassurance you've given with your acceptance,
the love you bring in with your existence,
empathy, perseverance and compassion,
being your biggest weapons.
The mirror does not reflect -
the strength you possess,
the ability you have to express,
the mistakes you've made and the battles
you've fought ,
and the lessons you've learnt to be a human:
self-taught.
So, the next time you look in the mirror
and see your reflection,
stare at it for a while
but without a word of objection.
You should stand there appreciating
the beauty of imperfections, feel blessed to have experienced -
A newfound connection!

Unfurl

A wave, the size of a mountain,
Soars skyward, fingers splayed;
but comes barrelling down.
Dragging to its depths, everything with it.
Deep into the sea we go,
Plummeting past the shore,
into the giant cradle, for those,
who strayed too far from the mother's nest.
She reels us back,
A tender gaze,
A gentle touch.
But we, the children, are far too weak.
We swim and flail,
We cry and scream,
We writhe and struggle,
We choke and then die.
So she weeps.
Flooding every continent,
Every country,
Every state.
And she weeps,
Mourning the loss of those,
She held so close.
Now lying lifeless, in her spread arms.

Let Me Shine

"Let me shine" is a conversational poem depicted in a period dramatic style, expressing the 'generational curse' it is to be a woman from a spirit to her child.

Shan't I compromise my joy? Shan't I compromise my joy?
Or so I perceive from the generations, my dear.
My spirit! Take away the growth, let me possess my toy.
My dear, it's worth is obscured, you shall remain in fear.

No! This patriarchy, this cruel world cannot hold me in its clutches!
Dear, please for the sake of them- act right,
Spirit, let me dream, far in a fantasy land, I am your Dutchess.
They're coming! Stay out of sight.

So this is it, the eulogy of me?
I'm a girl. That's my misery,
They keep me in the dark! Calling me out like a banshee,
Can't you hear my shivering? I am jailed for my identity!

My dear, one day they will realise you are the sun.
So where's my shine? Let me shine!
I will not hold back now, I shan't shun.
This is my time, for now, I shine. For now, I shine

Inferno

If only there was a world where you and I could co-exist,
Unlike the sun and moon that were grounded
by the sky,
Where the expanse was lenient and not extremist,
Perhaps, an ideal world with no questions
such as 'Why?'

We plunge into the sea deeper, deeper and deeper,
Until we are burdened with fate and cruelty,
Why won't they let us be, my dear lover?
Is it a sin to love? Because they deem us unholy.

My poems turn into elegies of our love,
You were the stardust I trapped to call my own,
But now the sanctimonies are teaching me to unlove,
Your ashes I keep so I do not have to be alone.

Our secrecy was my belief, and you were the God,
Though because we are girls, we better stay apart?
I believe that our souls coalesced, or is it rather odd?
Now we ought to part, so I leave you my heart.

I'd like to think in the next life we'll be united,
Though the gravestones are empty and without a death knell,
I bet our smoldering love will be recited,
Now, as they plunge me into fire, my Goddess, I will meet you in hell.

– Parishi Shah [SYJC - Arts C]

No Title

Grey

Azure sky,
Verdant grass,
Shimmering golden daffodils,
Yet I'm my darkest grey.
The grey,
Sometimes glistening, often subdued,
Stands out
But,
Always remains

Divine

Fingers entwined,
Your eyes looking into mine,
With you tracing your intricate palm along my arm.
The gentle feel of you,
Holding me in.
It's divine.

Fire

The house is on fire.
The creaky chairs burn,
The floral curtain ablaze,
Dainty clothes turned into ashes,
As the fiery monster devours wildly at,
Milk cartons, spoons and precious china plates.
The fire threateningly sizzles,
Effortlessly destroying each thing in its way,
There lay, on an unreachable shelf,
In the corner of the house,
A rose in a vase.

The fire doesn't reach it,
But the smoke,
Dark smoke surrounds the vase,
Its petals wither,
The dainty flower bows.

It soon grows weak,
As the smoke strangles it.
It's trapped...

Dark Within

Seems innocent,
Hidden behind the truth,
One look in her eyes,
The soul's reality shines.
Occasionally,
Evil,
Selfish greedy and monstrous,
Flowers and butterflies on the outside,
But dark within.

To See Eye to Eye With One's Self

I started my journey on the path named 'life'.
Guffawing through my way, with a beaming smile.

But alas, even the omnipotent fate suffers...
As it wrote me and peace, as star crossed lovers.

The judgy bright eyes burn through me,
Just like the sun burns the skin,
But only these deep wounds would never heal.

I quickly covered up those wounds...
Letting the world only see my beautiful moons.

I walk over the rusty leaves as they hustle...
To compare my worth in every rustle.
No sooner do I evolve...

Did they start singing the merry songs of fall.
Tired of the trajectory,
I ran away and begged for the comforting shade of a tree.

It swaddled me in its consoling shade
And promised it to me, only if I be, as it wanted me to be made
Scared of everything, I tried to run but I fell...
And thought that maybe there was peace at the end.

Seeing my reflection in a puddle nearby,
I thought I was just a body that hated its own colours of life.

Thinking of myself as a pot just sculptured,
I would have to accept the way I was coloured.

Others have always written my biography for me,

Now it's time, I decide my own destiny.
Again, I walk on the path of life,
But now, I change the narrative as I accept myself and smile.

The sky above now feels like a blanket of warmth.

And I hear the birds sing the songs of happiness henceforth.

Scars

My body is a temple,
Pure and bold,
Never to be sold,
A universe it can hold.
So much potential to do more,
To reach life's high score.

These were lessons handed down to me by toothless grannies

And brown-skinned nannies.
I grew up protecting this sanctum,
Never allowing anyone to look in,
Specially the opposite gender,
Lest they treat me like a bin.
But man is a social animal
And so is a woman,
Yet her place is nominal.
I reached out hoping to make friends,
Hoping to receive tender love
But instead ran for cover and dove.

My body is a temple,
Reverberates in my mind,
So many treasures yet to find.
I once stood on an open oasis,

Hurt but refusing to cede,
Waiting for my soul to be freed.
A kind stranger smiled at me,

Promising to take away my societal bonds of captivity.

I placed my hands in his
And breathed a sigh of relief.

Slowly the marks began to make their way on my skin.

I sought refuge with many a kin.
Then an unwelcome memory came to the shore,

Refusing to let go.
I surrendered to the grief
And then saw a vision so brief,
I was sixteen.

My body was a temple,
They came in without a fee,

Someone entered without taking off their shoes.

They broke the relic that was me,
Their breath stank of booze.

The pain they gave put me in a deep snooze.
Once I woke up I was battered
By caregivers who did not believe my story,

Making it ancient history.

PTSD, depression, anxiety,

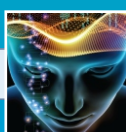

So many words.
Everything has a cure,
But it no longer makes me pure.
Purity is a social construct,
Tool of the wicked,
Crutch of the just.
But every woman should have it,

They just must!

My body is a temple,
The Goddess has finally awoken,
No longer broken,
Put together,
Skin as hard as leather.
She has no mercy,
She's out for blood,
No one can stand in her way,
She will roll the any sayers in the mud.
Her ardent devotees are women like you,
Who now knows what they must do.

Our bodies are temples,
We are the deities,
Proud in our heterogeneity.
Let's stand united,
All excited.
Ready to take charge of our fate,
And create for the calendar a brand new date.
A day that marks the initiation of our legacy,
Fulfilling the prophecy,
So mighty
Filled with brilliant ecstasy.

Flower Collection

I collect coriander flowers
And put them at the back of my phone.
I stuck a rose in my book when I was small,
Only to capture and store its beauty.

To keep it for myself
To look at it when I liked.
To remind me of its intricacy
Of its beauty, of delight.

Its fragile colours
Its delicate petals
The smooth shapes
And bright hues.

But you can't capture
That delicate grace
Those colours, the emotions,
The bright frame.

The freshness is forever lost
When a day passes by
And the petals begin to rot.

The colour all gone
The flower, now dry
With only colours of
Black and brown.

Dr. महेश भागवत
मे 16, 2021

साधारण मे महिन्याची सुरवात असेल. एक कावळ्याचं जोडपं घरटं बांधायची लगबग करायला लागलं. मी चौथ्या मजल्यावर राहतो. आमच्या स्वैपाकघराच्या समोर एक झाड आहे. त्याच्या अगदी वरच्या टोकावरील फांदीच्या बेचक्यात त्या जोडप्याने जागा निश्चित केली. झालं. इकडून तिकडून, मिळेल तिथून काड्या काटक्या, दोऱ्या, काथ्या, असं जमा करणं सुरू झालं.

कुठेतरी मी वाचलं होतं. की कावळ्याने झाडावर अगदी वरती जर घरटं बांधलं असेल, तर त्या वर्षी पाऊस कमी पडतो. कारण पावसाचा जोर कमी असतो, आणि घरट्याला धोकाही कमी असतो. हे खरं की खोटं माहीत नाही. पण आपल्यापेक्षा कावळ्यांना निसर्ग जास्त समजत असेल, असा विश्वास वाटला. म्हणून मी पत्नीला म्हणालो सुद्धा, की यावर्षी पाऊस कमी पडणार की काय...

हळूहळू घरटं आकार घेत होतं. खिडकीच्या अगदी समोर असल्याने कावळ्यांची लगबग मी न्याहाळायचो. दोघेही आळीपाळीने घरट्याची बांधणी करत होते. मी गेल्या वर्षी रुपारेल कॉलेजमध्ये भरलेल्या एका प्रदर्शनातून नारळाच्या काथ्यापासून बनवलेलं छानसं घरटं आणलं होतं. एखादया चिमण्यांच्या जोडप्याला ते आवडेल, म्हणून खिडकीत लटकून ठेवलं होतं. कावळ्यांना आयतंच घरट्याकरता बांधायला समान मिळालं. कावळे टोचून-

ओढून काथ्या घेऊन जाऊ लागले. मीही त्यांना काही आडकाठी केली नाही. म्हटलं परत आणू तसं कृत्रिम घरटं पुढल्या वेळी. कावळ्यांनी त्या मऊ काथ्याची घरट्यात छानशी गादी केली

साधारण पाच सहा दिवसांपूर्वी बघितलं की कावळा घरट्यात बसून आहे. याचा अर्थ अंडी टाकली होती. माझ्या खिडकीतून किती अंडी होती, ते दिसत नव्हतं. कावळ्यांमध्ये नर-मादी पटकन वेगवेगळे ओळखता येत नाहीत. त्यामुळे हेही कळत नव्हतं की ते दोघे आलटून पालटून अंडी उबवायला बसतात, की फक्त मादीच बसते. पण एकदा बसल्यावर कावळा बराच वेळ उठत नव्हता. अंडी लवकर उबवून, पावसाळ्यापूर्वी पिल्लं बाहेर येण्याची घाई असावी त्यांना. बराच वेळ बसणाऱ्या कावळ्याला, मधूनच त्याचा जोडीदार काही आणून भरवत होता. कारण इतका वेळ बसून भूक तर लागतंच असणार.

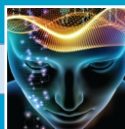

काल जेव्हा 'तौक्ते' वादळाची भविष्यवाणी झाली, तेव्हा मला कावळी वाटू लागली. आता त्या घरट्याचं, त्यात असलेल्या अंड्यांचं काय होणार, याची चिंता वाटू लागली. आजची सकाळ उजाडली. आभाळ कावळ्या दगांनी झाकोळलं होतं. वारा सुरवातीला नव्हता. साधारण ११ वाजता हळूहळू रिमझिम पावसाला सुरुवात झाली. तोपर्यंत ही काही खास गंधीर स्थिती होईल असं वाटलं नाही. पण जसजसे तास पुढे सरकू लागले, तसतसा पावसाचा जोर वाढू लागला. वाऱ्याने रौद्र रूप धारण केलं. मी त्यावेळी घरट्याचा एक फोटो काढला.

दर अर्ध्या तासाने मी खिडकी उघडून घरटं न्याहाळू लागलो. कावळीण (की कावळा?) घरट्यात बसली होती. अगदी पाय घट्ट रोकून. घरटं जोरजोरात हिंदकळत होतं. पण कावळीण शांत वाटत होती. कदाचित तिच्या आंतरिक शक्तीवर तिचा विश्वास असावा. मी मात्र इकडे अस्वस्थ होतो. एक दोन वेळा त्या जोडप्याला दूषण पण दिलं, की घरटं अधिक सुरक्षित जागी का नाही बांधलं म्हणून.

निर्दयी निसर्ग आणि सृजनाचा समोर दिसत असलेला संघर्ष मन अस्वस्थ करत होता. काय गरज होती या वादळाला आत्ताच यायची? पिल्लं बाहेर येऊन, त्यांच्या पंखात थोडं बळ आल्यावर का नाही आलं वादळ? त्यांच्या जन्माआधीच नियतीने का अशी जीवघेणी परीक्षा घ्यावी? सृजन, आणि जीवन

इतकं क्षणभंगुर, अनिश्चित करायचं असेल, तर नियती हे सगळं निर्माणच का करते? काय आनंद मिळतो तिला असं सगळं करून? का नाही तिने पंधरा दिवसांपूर्वीच त्या जोडप्याला सांगितलं की मी वादळ घेऊन येणार आहे म्हणून? आता जर घरटं पडलं, अंडी फुटली, तर त्या जोडप्याने काय करायचं? कुठे जायचं? मी त्यांच्या जागी असतो तर माझं काय झालं असतं? असे एक ना दोन, कितीतरी प्रश्न मनात घोघावत राहिले. बाहेर वादळ घोघावत होतंच

आता सात तास झालेत. कावळीण अजूनही घरट्यात बसून आहे. म्हणजे अंडी अजून शाबूत असावीत. त्यांना वादळाची झळ कावळीणीने बसू दिली नव्हती. तिचं खूप कौतुक वाटलं मला. पण आपण काही फार देदीप्यमान करत आहोत, असे काही भाव तिच्या चेहऱ्यावर नव्हते. ती तिचं कर्तव्य करत होती. निसर्गानेच वठवायला दिलेली भूमिका इमाने इतबारे वठवत होती. मला मात्र, माझ्याकडे न बघता, काही धडे सोपे करून शिकवत होती.

" कब तक हँसी लखिता रहूँ मैं "

कब तक हँसी लखिता रहूँ मैं,
आज मुझे आँसू लखि लेने दो।

कब तक दखाऊँ मैं अपने आत्मवश्वास को, आज मेरे उर को मेरे चेहरे पर खुलकर झलक लेने दो।

कब तक ढोंग करूँ मैं स्वयंपूरण होने के,
मेरे अंदर के खोखलेपन को आज सब से बयान कर लेने दो।

मैं शर्माता हूँ खुद से, मैं अपनी कमियाँ तुम सब से छुपा कर बैठा हूँ।
मैं दूसरों को ही नहीं, खुद ही को पागल बना कर रहता हूँ।

बहुत पहन ली संपूर्णता की पोशाक मैंने,
अब भरी भीड़ में मुझे नखिस्त्र ही रह लेने दो।

कब तक हँसी लखिता रहूँ मैं,
आज मुझे.... आँसू लखि लेने दो।

इन्सान

यूँ तो खुद को बड़ा धनवान बताता है, पर गरीब की कमाई खाता है
पैसा- पैसा करते करते,
अपना ईमान तक बेच डालता है
दुनिया वही है, बस इन्सान बदल गया है

यूँ तो सबको इन्सानयित दखिता है,
खुद को अच्छा और दूसरों को बुरा बताता है,
तस्वीर में हमेशा साथ होता है,
पर तकलीफ में कहीं गुम होता है
दुनिया वही है, बस इन्सान बदल गया है

यूँ तो खुद को जनता का सेवक बताता है,
फरि जनता के पैसे से खुद अपना जेब भरता है,
पहले तो बड़े बड़े वादे करता है,
और फरि खुद सब कुछ भूल जाता है।
दुनिया वही है, बस इन्सान बदल गया है

नहीं सगि नहीं है उसे,
ना ही सैतानो सी हँसी है,
इन्सान तो है वो,
बस इन्सानयित की कमी है।
दुनिया वही है, बस इन्सान बदल गया है....

एक नारी, अनेक भूमिकाएँ!
 मैंने देखा है उसे दनिभर परेशानियों से घरिकर भी मुस्कुराते हुए,
 हाँ, मैंने देखा है एक माँ को खुद रो कर भी अपने बच्चों को हँसाते हुए।

मैंने देखा है उन्हें हमारी छोटी से छोटी गलतियों को सुधारते हुए, हाँ, मैंने देखा है एक शक्तििका को देश का भवषिय उभारते हुए।

मैंने देखा है उसे कभी मुझे सताते ,तो कभी डाँटते हुए, हाँ, मैंने देखा है एक बहन को मुसीबत के वक्त मेरा गम बाँटते हुए।

मैंने देखा है उसे बचपन में अपनों की छोटी-छोटी बातों पर गुसूसा हो जाते हुए, हाँ, मैंने देखा है एक जदिदी बेटी को शादी के बाद मलि-जुलकर एक पयाया घर सजाते हुए।

मैंने देखा है उसे घर के कामों में अपने-आप को उलझाते हुए, हाँ, मैंने देखा है एक पत्नी को घरवालों की खुशियों में अपना सुख पाते हुए।

मैंने अक्सर देखा है एक ही नारी को अनेक भूमिकाएँ नभाते हुए, हाँ, मैंने देखा है देवी स्वरूपी नारी को दएि की भाँत दुनिया का हर एक आँगन जगमगाते हुए।

तू नारी है!

वशिव का प्रथम स्वरुप तूझ में है,
जीवन का स्रोत तूझ में है।
नीर में गरिता प्रतबिम्ब ओझल हो जाएगा,
पर संसार तेरा दुःख समझ नहीं पायेगा।

तू नारी है...

तू नारी है....

भूल मत!!भूल मत की!!!

तू शक्ति है शवि की,
तू कालदास की भक्ति है।
तू हर घर की मुख्य आधार स्तंभ है,
तू आगाज और आरम्भ है।
तेरे बनि हर काव्य अधूरा है,
तूझ बनि ये संसार न पूरा है।

तू नारी है...

तू नारी है...

फरि क्यों पड़ी है तू शव सी
फरि क्यों तू रोती. ससिकती है
चल उठ अभी समय है अपनी अस्तित्व के संघर्ष का
ये वक्त नहीं है वचिर और वमिर्श का।
उठ! तुझे चलना होगा,
छोड़ के दया भाव, खडग अब धरना होगा।
ना रुक अभी,
ना झुक अभी,
त्याग अपने भय के परधान को,
भर ले महादेव के अंतमि राग को।

तू नारी है...

तू नारी है...

तू दासी नहीं काली है ,
तो फरि इस रूप में क्यों खुद को ढाली है?
तेरे शीतलता को ये समाज लोभ से देखता है।
तेरे कोमलता को ये संसार भोग समझ बैठा है।

तू नारी है...

तू नारी है...

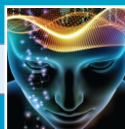

तू जल त्याग के ज्वाला बन,
उस ज्वाला से प्रकाश कर हर उस मन को,
जसिमें है अंधःकार का वास,
और उसी ज्वाला से कर पापियों का सर्वनाश।

तू नारी है...

तू नारी है...

तेरी लालमा के आँचल में... नारी,
ये संसार फलता है... फूलता,
तेरे प्रेम के प्रागण में,
मेरा अभी-जीत है झूलता।
हे नारी !तेरे पैरों की धूल को मैं माथे पर तलिक समझ
धरता हूँ,
मैं नशिखल होकर तुझे पूजा करता हूँ।
